Scholarships offered by Osmane Mounif Aïdi Foundation for Culture, Communication & Development
to 10 Syrian students for skills training at “First Class” Center.

In implementation of its objectives, to provide educational support to Syrian students and qualify them to access the business market, “Osmane Mounif Aïdi Foundation for Culture, Communication & Development” has concluded a cooperation agreement with the company “First Class for Consultancy, Training and Development” in Damascus. Under this agreement, 10 scholarships were granted to 10 Syrian students within the « Business Administration Skills Program » organized by the “First Class center” with the objective of feeding the business sector in Syria with qualified personnel who possess high practical and administrative skills.

The duration of the program is six months, starting November 2018 until April 2019. It targets young people who are endowed with a serious, positive character and high moral standing, who are willing to learn, and are ambitious to improve their knowledge and living conditions. The program offers 40 scientific topics in Business Administration that are commensurate with the business market requirements, highly focusing on English language proficiency. To be accepted in the skills training program, the applicant must undergo IQ and EQ tests, general knowledge tests, as well as a personal interview. A number of basic factors are taken into consideration, in particular, the equality of gender, and the non-discrimination between applicants except in terms of competence, aiming at providing the trainers with updated information, and seeking to help the participants to build a positive, strong and moral character, to become good role models to their co-workers.
